FISH LANDINGS GAINED IN JULY

Total Receipts Nearly Two Million Pounds More Than Last Year
But Value Was Less

Washington, D. C., September 5.—Landings by fishing vessels at the principal New England ports during July, amounting to 40,978,410 pounds valued at $1,310,169, showed an increase in quantity but a decrease in value as compared with the catch during July of 1929, when 38,200,136 pounds valued at $1,375,443 were landed, the bureau of fisheries reports.

However, the largest single item in the catch, fresh haddock, showed a decrease in quantity and a rise in value, being 15,206,489 pounds worth $223,600 in July, 1930, as against 18,362,306 pounds worth $365,372 in July, 1929.

Other Species and Values.

Other items in the catch during July of this year are reported as follows: fresh cod, 7,533,760 pounds valued at $195,212; salted cod, 137,990 pounds at $6649; fresh hake, 1,199,953 pounds at $15,486; pollock, 346,800 pounds at $6891; cusk, 174,209 pounds at $2952; halibut, 345,985 pounds at $46,479; mackerel, 12,872,055 pounds at $273,466; flounders, 863,630 pounds at $26,467; swordfish, 1,556,391 pounds at $300,524; herring, 254,100 pounds at $3216; and miscellaneous fresh fish, including bluebacks, butterfish, shad, sharks, sturgeons, tuna, whiting, wolffish, spearfish and livers, 478,848 pounds valued at $9225.

Landings at the principal New England ports during the first seven months of 1930 have been 218,473,490 pounds worth $7,821,956, as against 184,210,791 pounds worth $7,063,252 landed during the corresponding period of 1929.

Favored by good weather conditions, the fleet engaged in catching groundfish landed a large quantity of fresh fish during July. A feature of the receipts was the large amount of market codfish caught in South Channel. Mackerel landings continued to increase, as did the catch of swordfish.

Fish landings at Gloucester, one of the three principal New England ports, increased both in quantity and value during July over the landings during July, 1929, according to the bureau's report.

Increase at This Port.

The catch for July, 1930, at Gloucester was 7,903,240 pounds valued at $161,839 as compared with 5,965,536 pounds valued at $145,721 landed at the town during the same month a year ago.

The largest single item of the Gloucester catch during July was of fresh mackerel amounting to 4,546,630 pounds worth $76,079, which was followed by fresh haddock amounting to 1,818,130 pounds valued at $47,411.
